IN MEMORY OF JOHN CURLEY
 Homeroom 408 was filled with good spirits and happiness March 9, 1983. For the first time in four years they were able to surpass Homeroom 420 in the Mission Drive. As homerooms competed on that Sisters' Mission Day, John Curley was among the enthusiasts. (He was photographed that day. See picture above.) That evening on his way to work, his car hit an icy patch on the highway and John died that evening. To his classmates, he was a special person, one who always said, "Hi," and had time to talk. His friends feel that everyone should have known him, they would have benefited from his kindness.

We remember Mr. Murray

"He was the most fatherly man I knew; he cared about each student he worked with here at school as if we were his own children."

Mr. John Murray taught at DuBourg from 1969 till 1983. In the early morning of Apr. 13, he died of a heart attack, leaving his wife and six children, the oldest, Greg, a sophomore at DuBourg. In his years here, Mr. Murray taught social studies and, in some years, physical education. He also coached baseball for the B team and helped out in the sports program.
